INTRODUCTION

We consider that businesses have an important role to play in respecting human rights and we welcome legislative and other developments that are intended to improve protection for some of the world's most vulnerable people.

PURPOSE

The purpose of this policy is to outline our commitments and expectations in relation to human rights protection.

APPROACH

We consider that our 'Being Purple' ways of working, particularly our commitment to 'doing the right thing', provide concrete guidance for our global and regional processes and procedures to ensure that we meet and further our commitments to human rights protection.

Our commitments to supporting human rights include the following:

- > Promoting diversity, equality and fairness, as well as the physical and mental health and safety of our staff;
- > Eliminating the risk of discrimination, bullying, bribery or corruption in our operations; and
- > Conducting our business in a manner that respects the rights and dignity of all people, complying with all legal requirements;
- > Prohibiting the use of child labour, forced or compulsory labour or other forms of modern slavery in our operations; and
- > Ensuring our staff maintain and enhance our commitment to human rights protection.

We expect our suppliers to do business in an ethical manner and to share the same commitments as we do in supporting human rights, including the elimination of modern slavery in their organisation and supply chain.

Should we discover that any of our suppliers is (or may be) associated with human rights violations, appropriate action will be taken in a timely manner. Actions may include notification to regulators and/or law enforcement agencies, engaging with the relevant parties to promote good practice and/or avoiding or exiting the business relationship.
